MAN WHO HAD SEX CHANGE GIVES BIRTH TO 7-LB. BOY

Story: DION DONOVAN

World's youngest heart transplant toddler is fit as a little fiddle!

Brave Emily comes smiling through 9½ months after her surgery

Brave toddler Emily Jane Wilson, who became the world's youngest heart transplant recipient just 10 weeks after she was born, is now 12 months old and fit as a fiddle!

And as the one-scarred tot smiled through her first birthday party, her loving mum and dad openly shed tears of gratitude for the surgical miracle that saved their baby.

"I still remember thinking on the day her heart condition was discovered that I would never get out and buy her a pair of walking shoes," bereaved mum Lesley said. "I thought to myself, 'My little girl is going to die.'" But walking shoes were the first gift Lesley bought for the baby little girl who was then a year ago scanned on the brink of death with a heart that was all but useless.

Emily appeared perfectly normal when she was born in the hospital in Birmingham, England. But a couple of weeks later, Lesley and her husband Gerald became worried about the shape of her chest.

They took her back to the hospital where Emily's frail heart suddenly stopped beating.

"I fell to pieces," the 34-year-old father admitted unashamedly. "I wept and wept."

But a team of surgeons pulled off a miracle and managed to bring tiny Emily back from the grave.

Later, a heart consultant told the anguished parents that only a heart transplant — ordered of in an infant so young — could save their baby.

Emily was moved to a special coronary hospital where the agonizing wait for a heart donor went on day after day.

"I remember standing outside the intensive care unit just screaming," Lesley recalled. "I just kept crying out, 'Please God! Don't let my baby die.'

"But the part of the conscience that is not correct is that women are less concerned. Women say 'no' 25 percent of the time — but so do men."

Miss Byers, a clinical psychologist and sex therapist, surveyed 72 people who were married or living with someone for her research. The study participants were asked to keep a log of sexual activities.

Participants ranged in age between 18 and 62, Miss Byers said.

The psychologist says she's already well along into a follow-up study of dating couples that shows the findings are similar to those of married couples ... except that dating couples tend to have sex more often.

Miss Byers said she undertook her research to help couples who're really upset over sex. "Sex is a very important part of a relationship," she said. "It's a very important part of life."

But finally a donor was found and the delicate transplant operation came off without a hitch. But little Emily was far from out of the woods.

Three times her body rejected the heart. But special drugs and her fierce will to survive enabled her to hang on to life. Finally, Gerald and Lesley were allowed to take their little fighter home to her sister Faye, 8.

The grateful parents know the identity of the grieving couple who donated their dead child's heart and they agonize over whether or not they should contact them.

"One thing is certain," Gerald declared. "We will never be able to repay them."

Men say 'no' to sex as often as women!

When it comes to saying "no" to sex, there's total equality between the sexes, a surprising new study shows.

Guys turn down romance about once every four times they're asked, according to researcher Sandra Byers at the University of New Brunswick in Canada, just as gals do.

"Men do initiate sex more often than women and they think about initiating sex more often," Miss Byers said. "But the part of the conscience that is not correct is that women are less concerned. Women say 'no' 25 percent of the time — but so do men."

MARTA Gerber set her VCR to record a soap opera, and accidentally captured a space alien TV show — broadcast from another world!

Woman videotapes TV show from outer space!

Unusual sunspot activity may have steered extraterrestrial signals to gal's set, say stunned scientists

A 36-year-old housewife claims to have videotaped a television show from outer space.

And shockingly enough, a team of six scientists who studied the seven-minute tape agree that the program did not originate on Earth.

"We don't know what to make of it," Dr. Peter Wolfrath, the radio astronomer who led the team, told reporters in Lugano, Switzerland.

"We do know that the program was taped during a period of unusually heavy sunspot activity which could have steered a stray television signal to the woman's set.

"Beyond that we are as baffled as she is. The characters vaguely resemble human beings, but with baseball-sized eyes and large floppy ears.

"There isn't much action. The characters just stand there. And the dialogue — if you can call it that — is nothing more than clicking and squeaking noises like dolphins make.

"Needless to say we are continuing to study the tape. All we can say now is that it didn't originate on Earth."

Marta Gerber said yesterday that she taped the strange television program by accident.

"I set the VCR to record a soap opera while I was out shopping but that's not what showed up on the tape," she said. "When I got home and tried to play back my show there were two minutes of static and snow. Then the picture got clear and these monsters came on. They didn't do much. They just stood around and made clicking noises.

"At first I thought someone was playing a joke. But when I called the television station and told them about the tape they acted like I was some kind of a nut.

"Then I called the newspapers and they wrote about it. After that Dr. Wolfrath got in touch with me and asked if he could study the tape.

"I was glad to give it to him. It gives me the creeps. I'm still mad that I missed my soap."

The tape has generated interest among scientists around the world. One expert, French astrophysicist Philip Lemoine, says the tape — if genuine — is "the strongest proof yet that life exists in outer space.

"If we picked up one of their signals there's a good chance that they could be picking up ours," he added.

"If that is the case we'll do everything within our means to open lines of communications with these beings while we have this chance."

COLLECTION PLATE COVER-UP

Imprisoned Catholic priest Jeremy Hickey allowed boys he recently abused to count from the collection plate as they would keep their counting short, said a former church bigwig.

Hickey, 58, is serving a five-year prison term in Canada for sexually abusing 20 youngsters during the 18 years he was a parish priest in Ferryland, Newfoundland.

"His boys would take money out of the church collection so they wouldn't tell their parents about the sexual abuses," the ex-official, Bernard Aylward, said at an inquiry in Ferryland.

Inmate says NO to parole

A Massachusetts prison inmate turned down parole so he could continue to act in a jail production of Camelot!

Gordon Benjamin III is a member of the Awesome Convict Art Players at the Massachusetts Correctional Institute in Shirley. He plays the famous knight Sir Lancelot and really enjoys the role.

So when prison officials offered him his freedom after he had served two years in the slammer, he told them the play was more important — and asked to remain behind bars.

"I think it's very admirable," said Craig Brewer, who portrays King Arthur.

Prison officials bowed to Benjamin's surprise request and welcomed him to stay in prison.

Faith healer broke my back at revival, says granny!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A woman broke her back while being "healed" at a religious revival when she swooned and fell backward — and no one caught her!

"I had my eyes closed in prayer, and I recall swaying, but when I fell, I fell directly backward and hit my lower back," said Evelyn Kuykendall, 67.

Mrs. Kuykendall and other ladies from their church in Mardiville, N.C., drove to Greenville, S.C., last year to attend a "Healing Explosion" service of famed faith healers Charles and Frances Hunter.

"She was one of dozens lined up to be spiritually healed by the Hunters," said Mrs. Kuykendall's lawyer, J. Kendall Few.

"Mrs. Hunter put her hand on Mrs. Kuykendall's forehead and said, 'You are slain in the spirit,'" Few said. "Mrs. Kuykendall fell backward and went straight to the floor."

Usually two or three "catchers" stand behind each person being healed to break their fall, said Few.

But Mrs. Kuykendall testified at a U.S. District Court trial that no one was behind her to catch her. The Hunters claimed she fell in such a "peculiar way" their catchers were unable to reach her.

Mrs. Kuykendall denied in court that she fell in a strange way. "I don't see how I'd done this many times and always been caught," she said.

The former schoolteacher was taken to a hospital where she remained for two months.

"She is really incapacitated. She can walk a little bit, but suffers every single day," her husband, Francis, told The NEWS. Mrs. Kuykendall has suffered severe curvature of the spine since 1978. "And now this," said her husband. "Since the healing incident she can't cook, clean house, sew or do many of the things she used to do."

The jury awarded $300,000 damages to Mrs Kuykendall. No appeal has been filed by the Hunters or their co-defendant, City of Light Ministries.

Girl gets a grip on self-defense — and grabs the Queen's attention

The normally sourpuss Queen was on hand to pay tribute to an RAF unit celebrating its 50th anniversary.

After hurling a few luckless opponents through the air, hearty Helen, 24, told Elizabeth: "It's hard work, but I love it."

Girl spent 12 terrifying hours trapped in a storm-flooded sewer pipe

God sent someone to save me!

By DICK DONOVAN

"I knew I wouldn't die because God told me He would send someone to come get me."

That brave little-girl faith kept 7-year-old Tricia Reese alive for 12 terrifying hours as she clung to a crank deep inside a storm-flooded sewer pipe.

And the gutsy youngster was finally saved by the chance arrival of Tim Gabrysch — who just happened to be carrying the sewer plans that showed him where to find her!

"I wasn't looking for her. I just happened to be in the neighborhood doing a job," said Tim, a field foreman for a Houston, Tex., firm hired to overhaul the city's sewer system.

"Then a boy came up to me and said, 'Will you help us look for my cousin? She fell into the sewer.' I had heard that a little girl had been swept into the sewer, but I didn't know it was in that neighborhood.

"Like everyone else, I thought she was dead. But I couldn't refuse to help. So I looked at the sewer plans I had with me and saw where the first manhole was from where she fell in. Ten minutes later, I had her."

Brave 7-year-old kept her faith during nightmare ordeal

Little Tricia's nightmare ordeal began late the previous day when the youngster toppled into a ditch flooded by torrential rains from Tropical Storm Allison.

The surging currents swept her into a culvert, plunged her down a 24-inch drain pipe and through another 36-inch pipe and into the city's main sewer pipe that empties into a bayou a quarter-mile away.

As Tricia tumbled through the flooded pipe, her little fingers clawed at the slimy sides in a desperate effort to pull her head above the water.

Incredibly, she managed to grip a crack in the pipe and her horrifying ride ended.

Throughout the night — for 12 agonizing hours — heroic Tricia clung to that lifesaving crack, talking to God and waiting for the rescue she knew would come.

"When I opened the manhole," Tim told The NEWS, "I went down and flashed my light down the pipe and I thought I saw the shadow of a girl.

"I called out to make sure I wasn't seeing things and the shadow ran. She said, 'Who are you?' I found out later that she had been taught to be careful of strangers.

"I said, 'Come on, baby, you can make it. I'll get you to your mama.' She was crying, but she came to me. It was a good feeling when I held her in my arms and saw that she was O.K."

Tricia's 31-year-old mother, Karen, had just returned home from searching the bayou for her daughter's body when she learned that she had been found.

"When I heard the ambulance," Tim said, "I went down and got her out. I gave her to the paramedics and they took her away. I guess I had resigned myself to the fact that she was dead and I was crying my heart out.

"When I saw a man carrying her, I thought she was dead. Then she cried out, 'Mama,' and I couldn't believe it. I just can't describe the joy I felt."

Incredibly, little Tricia came through her ordeal with just a few bumps and scrapes. After a night in the hospital, she was allowed to go home.

"She told me she was never afraid she was going to die," Karen said. "She told me, 'Mama, I prayed to God to send somebody to come get me and He told me He would.

"'After that, I knew I wouldn't die because God told me He would send someone to come get me.'"

Lonely farmers are paying big bucks for kidnapped brides

By TIM WALPOLE

Lonely Chinese farmers are buying up kidnapped women by the thousands — and taking them as wives!

Over 5,000 tragic ladies have been abducted from China's larger cities and towns since the first of the year and sold in rural areas for $35 to $1,500, depending on their age, health and looks.

Authorities say they would like to stop the evil trade in human flesh.

But they haven't made a single arrest. And chances are, they won't.

"We have our priorities and this isn't one of them," government spokesman Song Tai Yuan told reporters in Beijing.

"There are millions of lonely farmers who want women and who need women. It's true that kidnapping and forced marriages aren't the best ways to pair off couples.

"But no matter how much we might like to stop the sale of women, we can't. We don't have the money or the manpower.

"And until we get both, there's not much we can do about it."

Tragic dad Shen Cheung of Zhengzhou has suffered doubly at the hands of China's kidnappers. His two teenage daughters were spirited away by a gang of thugs in January. And he has neither seen nor heard from them since.

"They were all the family I had," said the 59-year-old man. "My wife died many years ago and I have no other children.

"I would do anything to get my daughters back. But the police can't help. And I don't know how to find them."

Wang Guanfa, 47, lost his teenage daughter Lian to the kidnappers — but he got lucky. Chinese police found her less than three months after she was abducted in Yanchi.

Farmer Kang Shoulli, from the sparsely populated Hebei province, is one of several farmers in the region who are known to have placed orders for kidnapped women.

He makes no bones about it — and says he'll gladly take any woman they're offered to him.

"I don't care if she is old or young, thin or fat, smart or stupid," Kang said. "As long as she cooks, cleans, and attends to other wifely duties, I will be happy.

"I am tired of being alone," he said.

Chinese say 5,000 women have been stolen this year

TEENAGER Lian Guanfa was lucky — she was found by police and returned home.

Hubby calls cops because pregnant wife's on dope!

A desperate hubby tipped off cops about his pregnant wife's crack cocaine habit because he feared it would harm their unborn baby.

Hubby Michael Anderson said he had tried to persuade his wife to stop using drugs, but she wouldn't listen to him.

"It reflects a sad state of affairs when a husband has to have his wife arrested," said Assistant District Attorney Lois Wright.

A canine love story you'll never forget!

Hero dog tries in vain to save his mate — then joins her in death!

By SUSAN JIMISON

A Brittany spaniel named Kim became a hero in his hometown after he desperately tried to rescue his mate from a burning kennel, and then died with her rather than leave her side.

Schoolchildren in Borgia Verona, have erected a memorial to the courageous pooch after he died in September 1985. His owner, businessman Pier Giacomo Cassani says Kim and his female companion Flame were inseparable.

"Kim never ate before Flame began her meal," he recalled. "And if I put a little more meat in his bowl, he'd use his paw and muzzle to tear it in two and give her some of it.

"I still don't know how the fire started in the kennel. I think it was caused by a short circuit. I only know that Kim and Flame are gone now and my heart is broken."

Witnesses of the tragedy still get teary-eyed remembering what happened.

Fireman Antonio Marconi said that when he and other fire fighters arrived on the scene, the flames in the kennel had already reached the roof of the small building.

Standing outside the kennel was Kim, his fur singed and blackened and one paw disabled. The animal was desperate to rescue his mate, Marconi recalled. A kennel worker told firemen the dog had already entered the burning building three times trying to rescue his mate trapped inside.

"He had probably been injured by falling plaster inside the building," Marconi said.

"He looked at me and barked, as if to tell me to follow him because he knew how to get to Flame.

"I grabbed a fire extinguisher and followed him into the kennel, but after a few steps I had to stop — the flames and smoke were terrible. But before Kim disappeared through the flames to go to his mate."

Marconi said he tried several more times to enter the building, without success. Kim finally came back outside again, begging for help. But the fire fighters could do nothing.

"Then Kim rubbed himself against my legs as if to say, 'Help me, please — I can't do it myself,'" Marconi said. "But there was nothing I could do. And when all seemed lost, Kim suddenly seemed to understand that his companion was going to die.

"He jumped up and barked, then sprang into the flames. An hour later when the fire was finally extinguished, my colleagues and I found a terrible and moving scene: Kim and Flame were burned to death, lying beside each other as if in a last embrace."

Their 34-year marriage hits a sour note!

Hubby dumps organ-playing wife and sets house on fire

By SUSAN JIMISON

Angry hubby George Banks hated his wife's organ playing so much that he walked out on her, a shocked court heard — and set their house afire!

"It was terrible," Banks, 59, wailed during his trial for arson. "She played that thing seven days a week, 24 hours a day. She played everything you have ever heard of — and none of it very well.

"I was driven out of the house by it. She played it all the time. If you have someone playing the organ like that, how would you react?"

She played that thing 24 hours a day and it drove me nuts, he tells judge

According to court testimony, the Streatton, England, couple had been happily married for 34 years before their relationship hit a sour note. They had raised two children and Jean needed something to fill her days.

In 1968, she decided to take up playing the electric organ. The court was told — and developed such a passion for music that it drove her husband over the edge.

"She'd play it at any time, even in the middle of the night," Banks said. "You'd go crazy too if someone played that organ all night and day."

Banks begged his wife to stop her organ orgy before it got too late, but she wouldn't. So he packed his bags and walked out on her — and decided to pay her back for her ear-splitting sonatas and disk-defying dance tunes by burning the house down around her!

The judge in the arson trial may have sympathized with Banks, but he pointed out that arson was a serious crime. He sentenced Banks to two years' probation.

WURST: George Banks leaves court after his trial for arson.

Welfare moms have low birthrates

Women on welfare have fewer babies than women who are better off?

That's the surprising word from Washington University sociologist Mark Rank. The expert surveyed 965 women and found that those on welfare average 46 births per 1,000 women compared to 73 births per 1,000 for women in general.

The study indicates that women on welfare don't have baby after baby simply to increase the amount of their benefit checks, Rank said.

Man's sex life saved by bizarre operation

By DICK DONOVAN

In a medical feat that boggles the imagination, surgeons attach a man's severed penis — by sewing it to his forearm!

The penis, sliced off in a lawn mower accident, was grafted onto the man's arm so that it will be kept nourished by blood until it is put back where it belongs.

Officials at Froedtert Memorial Lutheran Hospital in Watertown, Wis., would not identify the victim other than to say he lives in the Milwaukee area.

Hospital spokesman James King said four plastic surgeons worked feverishly for nine hours to graft the severed penis to the man's forearm. King said the operation to reattach the organ could be made in about a week.

The details of the accident are sketchy, King said, but apparently the man, described as in his 30s, was working under the riding mower that was standing on blocks.

He said the machine's engine was not running, but as the man made repairs, it apparently slipped off the blocks, causing the mower's cutting blade to turn and lop off his penis.

The injured man and his severed organ were driven to a hospital in Menomonee Falls by a relative. The man and his ice-packed penis were rushed to another medical center before finally being moved to Froedtert where the temporary graft was accomplished.

MAN WHO HAD A SEX CHANGE GIVES BIRTH TO 7-POUND BOY

Guy who became a gal is first transsexual to have a baby

A transsexual made history on June 23 when she gave birth to a 7-pound 2-ounce boy — the first baby ever born to a man who had a sex change.

New mom Gunn Johansson, former Gunnar Johansson, reportedly came through her pregnancy and caesarean section delivery without a hitch.

The infant boy is also said to be in good health, although he is being fed with formula because the mother's breasts are sincere and produce no milk.

"It's a dream come true," the 32-year-old sex-change woman said from her hospital

"Having this baby means more to me than anything in the world.

"It's like getting the chance to start my life all over again."

Doctors who cared for the new mother through her ... and childbirth are just as ... Uppsala.

Dr Georges Chaman, the sex-change specialist who gave Gunnar Johansson a uterus and ovaries in a transplant operation in 1987, called the delivery of the baby "a miracle."

Obstetrician Hans Winkler stated: "I had doubts about Miss Johansson's pregnancy but they vanished as time passed.

"Once I got over thinking of her as a man, I began to feel better. And when I look at her now, holding that beautiful baby boy I realize how wonderful motherhood is."

Gunn's baby was born by caesarean birth as the infant really is ... world's first."

Miss Johansson's transformation from unhappy young man to ecstatic new mother began in 1986. As Gunnar Johansson, he had himself ... man's body and began to ... ready candidate ... sex-change operation.

And as fate would have it, the troubled young man was introduced to Dr Georges Chaman, who proposed a sex-change operation. — and the world's first transplant of female reproductive organs from a woman to a man.

Within a year, she was pregnant with the baby that was finally born last month.

The father of the baby has not been identified in reports. But Miss Johansson says that she and the man plan to marry and "raise the child together as husband and wife."

The couple named their child Georgen Eric, after Dr Chaman, the new mother said.

"He made all of this possible," she added. "It's only fitting that the child be named after him."

We earned . . .

$ 40,500.00 the first month!
$ 82,500.00 the second month!
$210,100.00 the third month!

And You Can Do The Same!

What I am about to describe is a system that could make you more than $40,000.00 in 90 days. And even if it makes only half as much for you as it does for me, you'll still make a lot of money.

But first of all it is easy to make the kind of money right out of your own home. It takes an original (a go-getter) and there is no need to quit your job or take any financial risks at all.

Sound too good to be true? Just keep reading, because I'm going to prove it to you by letting you take a free look at it!

It Came Just In Time!

My name is Elwyn Carter. A little over two years ago, I was a total failure. I desperately needed to earn a lot of money fast. It came just in time. I was 44 years old, tired of working, and afraid of beginning to worry about how I will pay each bill. I would like going. I envied those who seemed reasonably comfortable. But we had another hard pill in our lives. The youngest of our six children was about ready to leave the nest, and he wanted to be really going in high gear with enough money to really enjoy it.

And, like most couples, we had a mixture of dreams still not realized. We had no desire to squander but did not enjoy budgets or count every penny. Budgets frowned on many of the things we enjoy, like eating out, taking a little trip or two a year, and splurging on the best of our lives travelling anywhere we wanted.

It was time to make some real money!

I Had Only a Few Requirements:

First, it had to be something that took no money at all to get started!

Second, it had to bring in dollars immediately, not a little later, after working any additional investment of capital!

Third, it had to be something I could start right out of my own home, without employees.

Fourth, I didn't want to be involved in mail-order, gambling schemes, multi-level, door-to-door sales, chain letters or pyramids.

Fifth, it had to be perfectly legal and moral in every aspect of the word.

Sixth, it had to be very, very lucrative!

It Was So Simple!

It took eight months of searching – and a few false starts. But then I discovered a method of making money that was so simple I would hardly believe it. For the first time in my life I was able to produce large amounts of cash anytime I needed it.

Huge Returns!

The first month we took home $40,500.00. After that it got even better:

1st month:	$40,500.00
2nd month:	$82,500.00
3rd month:	$210,100.00
4th month:	$[illegible]
5th month:	$[illegible]
6th month:	$[illegible]
7th month:	$[illegible]
8th month:	$[illegible]
9th month:	$[illegible]
10th month:	$[illegible]
11th month:	$[illegible]

And What About that $100,000 Car I Dreamed About?

I have to confess, I was down to my last $100.00 one day. I could not afford to buy even a tank of gas for my car, much less a new $75,000 Lamborghini Countach sports car. The car magazines all said it was fantastic. We also bought a new yacht. And even though I still had nothing in the way of new furniture in my home, I was able to get a brand-new set of new entertainment units. There are other good things about my new "job" I haven't said a word about, and at this writing I am already retired.

I don't say any of this to brag. But I am proud of what I have done. And I don't want to hold anything back. I know when you see how I'm making my good luck rolling, there should be no reason why you can't make money hand over fist, just like I did. And you can do it in your own home, without employees.

Do You Mind If I Make Another Million?

You may be wondering why I'm willing to share a secret like this with you. I'm willing to share a secret like this with you for three reasons. I'll give you the second reason in a minute. It's the one most people think of first. But the third reason is the most important reason of all. I have to tell you, I'm so good that I plan to write a lot of these programs and get another million dollars or two.

And I don't think you'll mind a few thousand of those coins from my pocket if I show you how to make a few million for yourself.

You Can Look At It Free!

If you're skeptical, I don't blame you. There are dozens of money-making programs which you have to buy completely on blind faith. And I don't blame you if you don't want to get involved in programs like multi-level or personal chain letters. I'm not anything like one of those.

But now you won't have any risk at all. I'm going to give you 30 days to actually try out this program. And if you're not completely satisfied with the results – if you're not earning good money and you're NOTHING what I am telling you is true –

Here's What You'll Get:

I'll send you a short exercise volume. 130 pages to be exact. It shows you everything you need to know about starting up this highly lucrative program. There's nothing else you need to buy. You don't need an office, or a warehouse, or a store, or anything like that. It's all laid out for you, step by step.

You'll Get In On The Ground Floor!

Like anything else that becomes very successful, it's always be an imitator or a right now. Good things have a way of copying and going. And while that right now may not be nearly as profitable five years from now. But I can guarantee you that right now it's the newest, hottest, money-maker you'll ever see. I'm making a killing while it lasts, and you can do the same!

TOP PSYCHIC'S INCREDIBLE LOTTERY-WINNING SYSTEM USES A DECK OF CARDS!

By MARK PATTERSON

The world's winningest lottery psychic says anyone can hit the jackpot with a simple number-picking system that he developed himself!

All you need are well-shuffled playing cards and the time it takes to deal out a hand. The cards that turn up will correspond to numbers in the chart below.

Play them and Brazilian psychic Paulo Costa says you are virtually guaranteed to win — and win big.

"The system really works," said Costa, who proved that he is the world's top lottery psychic when he netted $4.81 million after winning the Brazilian lottery in multiple plays.

And the beauty of the method is that you don't have to be psychic or have ESP to use it," he continued. "If you can shuffle and deal cards you can get the numbers you need to be a winner."

Costa, 37, made international headlines when Brazilian lottery officials tried to bar him from playing the country's national lottery last spring.

As the story reported in May, officials originally feared the gifted psychic had used a mind-blowing $1.80 million in his superstitious lottery streak.

And they hoped that he was causing thousands of fans (called citizens) to stop playing the game.

The truth is that Costa really is playing the lottery fair and square, when dozens of churches that he has gifted with millions rallied in his support.

And he has now developed a special lottery system to help people from all over the world who want lottery luck here in the lottery participate.

"Everyone can't psychic so they can't pick winning numbers out of thin air like I can," said Costa. "That's why I developed a system based on playing cards.

"I have personally conducted tests that show cards can reveal perfect winning numbers in at least four games out of 10." Here's how the system works:

1 Decide how many numbers you need to pick for the lottery game you want to play. In the United States, players typically choose three, five, six or seven numbers from pools of 10, 30, 49 or 50-plus.

2 Look at the chart that accompanies this story. Psychic Costa has assigned numbers to a 52 card deck, all the hearts from a normal deck and one joker. Make sure the second deck has a different design on the back, Costa says, so you can tell them apart.

If the lottery game you want to play has a pool of 50 numbers you would pick five cards. If the pool is 30, you would pick three cards.

In other words, the only cards that correspond to numbers on your lottery card.

3 Shuffle cards. Cut deck. Deal one card for each lottery number you need to pick.

4 Find the number values of the cards you dealt using Costa's chart. Record the numbers on your lottery ticket. Repeat steps 3 and 4 for each lottery ticket you plan to buy.

"You may not win the first time, the second time or even the third time you play," said Costa.

"But in the long run you can expect to win almost half the games you play."

BECOME an instant millionaire like these lucky winners, say top psychic Paulo Costa. Use a deck of cards and one joker. If you need numbers above 52, add the lucky team a pay card deck with a different back. Deal one card for each number you need. Find the number value opposite the card in the chart below. Record that number on your lottery ticket.

1.6 million French readers eagerly check his predictions every week... and the 17 million readers of the largest newspaper in America have given him the title of "the greatest astrologer in Europe."

For the first time, the great French Astrologer, Jean Rignac, offers you his help, Free of Charge, to solve your most Serious Problem

(He also reveals your immediate future)

Jean Rignac

A big newspaper has just named him Astrologer of the Year, with a score of 20 out of 20, for the astonishing accuracy of his predictions.

Message from Jean Rignac

I have always been disturbed by the fact that people suffer throughout the year with serious money problems - failure in love, loneliness, fear of tomorrow, and then nothing is done to help them.

That is why I have decided to place my 45 years of experience as an astrologer at your service.

Thanks to the method I have perfected, which has finally been revealed, I can accurately tell you your future for the next twelve months.

The most important thing: I can tell you how to take advantage of your lucky periods and the good things which are going to happen during these months (this is for sure, even if you don't believe it!). I can also teach you how to avoid those hard blows — with my help you can quickly see your life completely changed.

The Greatest Astrologer in Europe

Americans call him "Europe's most famous astrologer" after he made a series of predictions on a well-known American weekly, with a circulation of 17 million readers. These predictions concerned the lives of such famous people as the Kennedy family, Barbra Streisand, Richard Nixon, Elizabeth Taylor, Queen Elizabeth, Sophia Loren, and many other celebrities.

And as the results poured the Americans had to recognize that, amazingly, everything he predicted came true.

For more than 30 years, now, he has broadcast on Radio Luxembourg, followed by millions of listeners. And that's not all — each week in a famous paper, 14 million readers devour the page on which he describes their future, sign by sign.

The love of thousands of lovers so far received over the years prove the incredible accuracy of his predictions. Many people have asked themselves how he does it.

A large newspaper has lately given him the title of Astrologer of the Year with a score of 20 out of 20 for the accuracy of his predictions. This score puts him at the head of all astrologers in Europe, and perhaps, the world.

All this to tell you that Jean Rignac is not an ordinary astrologer. He is an exceptional person who can really tell you what's going to happen to you in the most positive manner.

Jean Rignac wants to use his valuable experience to help as many people as possible and to extend his helping hand to them. He is not able to do it for long because he soon will have to give priority again to his natural clients.

A Secret Method

As a youth, Jean Rignac was amazing as he an engineer. Always inquisitive and eager to learn, he asked himself this question: How is it that princes, engineers, graduates, the great people of the world, follow the advice of their astrologer? Why do these men, with such heavy responsibilities, consult them when they have an important decision to make? Is there something true about astrology, then?

He did some research and very quickly concluded that it was true, that there is something about it. He began to study astronomy, medicine, psychology, to research their correlations with each other and on the character and behavior of people. Little by little, he perfected a method that gives him fabulous results - predictions with an accuracy that no astrologer has ever before succeeded in obtaining.

Jean Rignac's Predictions

During the course of his life, he has made thousands of predictions. But here are the most famous ones.

Jackie Kennedy's divorce from Aristotle Onassis in 1972. Barbra Streisand's love and health problems. President Nixon's

In the middle of 1970, he predicted the death of General de Gaulle (which happened on November 9, 1970). The death of Charlie Chaplin. The end of Onassis-Callas's love affair. The stock market crash of 1987, etc.

He has drawn up the horoscopes of dozens of politicians and several Presidents of the Republic.

Many of his predictions concerning the political or worldwide life of the time are not published. But they exist, and some people have benefited from them. Their accuracy is amazing.

Chop up those slimy drug dealers — just a little piece at a time!

I'm madder than a rooster with a sore throat at wimpy druglauter Bill Bennett, the man who's supposed to lead America's fight against these rotten dope peddlers who are ruining our country.

First he popped up on one of those yappy TV talk shows and says that chopping the hands off slimy drug dealers is O.K. by him.

Sure, slicing off noggins is the only good idea those brainhead animal parkeys in Arab the Arab land ever had, and it's worth a shot.

But he quit behind, the next day I turned on the radio and [redacted] and felt like somebody had put the steel plate in my head with a ball peen hammer. Blisters

Bill was more hurt than him. Like some preening weasel-mouth liberal pansy, he said he didn't mean that we should REALLY chop the hands off these cheeseballs.

It was like John "Duke" Wayne charging halfway up the beach in The Sands of Iwo Jima and then whimpering, "Say, why" and turning and

I just hope Pres Bush was tuned in to this sickening display by his No. 1 mate.

He might as well give Bill the boot and replace him with one of those pinko women's lib/pro-abortionist wimps who broke into tears when they French-fried the Terrible Ted Bundy in Florida's hot seat.

But I've calmed down and maybe wishy-washy Bill is right.

Don't chop their heads off. Start with their feet and slice off something else every 90 days until there's nothing left but a human stump.

That kind of Madeon-Amerish punishment would put the filthy drug dealers out of business fast. And dont could even use them fresh body parts to transplant on poor car wreck and burn victims.

If crime experts know they would end up on the chopping block instead of the guilty criminals, they'd think twice about selling dope to our kids.

Real-life 'Batman tribe' found in Amazon jungle

JUNGLE tribesman wear masks and capes copied from the 1960s Batman TV show. Some even studied tapes given to their chief

. . . & they're driving fellow natives batty, say stunned anthropologist

By RUDY TAYLOR

A tribe of Batman-like caped crusaders have gotten into hot water with other savages in the Amazon jungle by constantly trying to save their lives when they aren't in any trouble!

That's the word from Brazilian anthropologist Mauro Caldas, who traced the tribe's fascination with the superhero to a fur trader who showed them videos of the 1960s Batman TV series on a set powered by a portable generator.

"In their minds Batman is real and they want to be just like him," Dr. Caldas told newsmen in Rio. "It seems like they're always running around trying to rescue people in distress.

"Unfortunately, a lot of people they 'rescue' aren't in distress. And their behavior is generating a lot of tension among neighboring tribes that used to live in peace."

Dr. Caldas discovered the tribe in early June and began an immediate study to figure out why they had suddenly become so aggressive.

He found that the tribesmen had adopted the names of Batman characters — Batman, Robin, Batgirl and the Joker — and were wearing capes and masks.

Dr. Caldas said the tribesmen also had learned to shout "Batman!", "Biff!", "Pow!" and "Socko!" in English.

Some of the tribesmen even were sporting Batman utility belts hanging from their chins!

The expert traced their apparent fascination with Batman to the fur trader Alvaro Raposo. He then discovered that neighboring tribespeople were being "rescued" left and right by the Batcrusaders, even when they weren't in danger.

Dr. Caldas gave these examples in a report to the Brazilian press:

● A Batman crusader was spotted paddling a canoe full of members of a rival tribe who had been captured in a raid. As it turned out the captives were not kidnap victims — they were being taken to a prison island for criminals.

● Three caped savages yelling "Biff!", "Kapow!" and "Socko!" beat up a man they thought was raping a woman. In fact, the couple were newlyweds.

● Another caped tribesman on a search of adventure fell out of a tree and landed on a German missionary, breaking two of the reverend's ribs.

● An entire gang of bat-savages beat up a witch doctor whose face was painted white, because they thought he was The Joker — Batman's arch-enemy.

"There are countless other examples of these misadventures," said Dr. Caldas, "and the situation seems to be getting worse.

"We can only hope that these savages tire of imitating Batman. If they don't, neighboring tribes are going to put a stop to all these crazy 'rescues' once and for all."

Firecracker's blast severs man's finger — & blows it into his eye!

By PETE COOKE

A man who lit a firecracker with a sharp jerk blew off part of his hand and blinded himself — when his severed index finger bounced in his eye!

Authorities said 35-year-old Gerard Brady was escaping with his wife and a friend in the Catskill Mountains near Hazlet, N.Y., when the bizarre tragedy occurred.

Sullivan County Sheriff Joseph Wasser said Brady was holding a powerful M-80 firecracker in his hand when he lit the fuse.

"The M-80 had a short fuse on it and it exploded before he could get rid of it," Wasser said.

"The explosion blew off part of his hand and his index finger flew up into his right eye."

The sheriff said Brady was rushed to Community General Hospital in Harris by his wife. The injured man was then flown by helicopter to Westchester Medical Center in Valhalla, where he was listed in fair condition.

Hospital spokeswoman Barbara Newman said the exploding blew the index finger and part of the thumb off Brady's right hand. Brady's severed index finger also embedded in his right eye, said Newman.

The M-80 firecracker has the explosive power of a quarter-stick of dynamite, according to experts.

"It was just a matter of time before a tragedy like this one occurred," Sheriff Wasser said.

Student cleared in sex case is in hiding after girl's parents vow:

'We'll pay for the head of the man who raped our daughter!'

By DICK DONOVAN

A teenage boy who was cleared of raping a University of Colorado coed has been driven into hiding — because the girl's shamed parents have put a price on his head!

Terrified 18-year-old Jason Martinez has been forced to move three times more fearing that the girl's fanatical Indonesian parents had offered to pay a bounty to anyone who kills him. Jason is scared [illegible] after

It looks like the couple is playing hide-and-seek with the young visitor in a Canadian wildlife park attraction. The youngster hardly turned to see the long-necked giant but was thrilled by the sight of the animal way. Dan Caplis told The NEWS. "The girl is back with her family in Jakarta, Indonesia, but we believe the death threat is real and so does the District Attorney."

The girl, 19-year-old University of Colorado student Irma Abdul Kadir, had accused Martinez of raping her in her campus dormitory room. But the boy said she had consented to have sex with him.

"They had sex together, no one's disputing that," Caplis said. "They undressed themselves and before they got [illegible] the girl told Jason to go get a condom.

"Jason was gone from the room for about an hour looking for a condom and some of her friends said they knew he was looking for one. When he got back in the room they had sex.

"The girl claims that Jason pinned her to the bed and raped her. But the condom wrapper was found in her room and there was no trace of semen on the girl.

"On top of that, Jason passed two polygraph tests and that's very difficult to do if you're lying.

"No charges were filed against him."

When Martinez threatened to sue Miss Kadir unless she made a public apology, she had him to the courts by filing a damage suit of her own against him.

It was when Caplis was interviewing one of Miss Kadir's friends that he first learned that the girl's parents — prominent Islamic living in Indonesia — have offered a reward for the murder of his client.

A second friend confirmed that a bounty has been offered.

"The girl's suit is set for trial in July," Caplis said. "But she has fired her attorney and her suit she won't attend the trial.

"When we heard that, we really became worried about the death threat."

Caplis considers Martinez's plight in that of British author Salman Rushdie, who lives in constant fear that some unknown killer will snuff out his life — as ordered by the late Ayatollah Khomeini — for writing the book The Satanic Verses.

"We have to do what we can to protect Jason," Caplis said. "But there really isn't a lot we can do.

"If they really want him dead, sooner or later they're going to get him."

Crippled welfare dad wins $15 million lottery payoff

Disabled father-of-three Edward Stein Jr. won't be needing those welfare checks he's been getting since 1983 — at least not until his $15 million lottery payoff runs out!

The 47-year-old epileptic and his wife Rita, 42, found the pot at the end of the rainbow when they hit Ohio's Super Lotto jackpot.

"It boggles the imagination when you've had next to nothing for so long," said Stein, who has been unable to work because of his epilepsy and a previously undiagnosed learning disability.

Ed and Rita claimed the money — payable at the rate of $468,000 a year for 26 years — on behalf of themselves and her mother, 63-year-old former seamstress Anna Kessel, who provided the $10 to buy

Stein said, adding that the windfall will be used to pay off medical bills and to provide things — including a trip to Disney World — that their children missed because the couple had no dough.

Mrs. Stein said she has been unable to work because of the demands of raising the three children, Jason, 10, Anthony, 8, and 7-year-old Theresa.

"It's absolutely wonderful they won all that money," said a family friend.

"I can't think of anyone who deserves it more than they do. They've had a very rough time."

Pig parts — for people!

Pigs will soon be donating most of the organs used in human transplant patients, experts predict.

Though chimps and baboons provide a better match, pigs are cheaper, more plentiful and easier to breed, they say.

But doctors caution that before any animal hormone is going down to work and it will be necessary to overcome technical problems involved in transplanting from one species to another.

"What could change, I suppose, is that we could become better at making artificial organs than we are now," said Dr. Hugh Auchincloss at Harvard University.

"Then we wouldn't need animal organs. But I wouldn't see that coming first."

Gal hijacks 70 m.p.h. train

. . . because it wasn't moving FAST enough!

A woman commuter went berserk and grabbed the controls of an express train highballing along at 70 m.p.h. — because she thought it was moving too slow!

Blonde, 23-year-old Darsha Rees broke into the engineer's compartment and wrestled the throttle away from the shocked railman as the packed train sped through the English countryside bound for London.

"Slow down, slow down," Miss Rees screamed. "How can you make this thing go faster?" as the repeatedly yanked on the throttle before she was finally subdued.

Miss Rees was arrested and admitted to taking control of a train and endangering passengers when she appeared in court.

None of the commuters on the packed express were injured during the incident, authorities said.

Suspicious people die sooner, says new study

The less suspicious you are of other people, the longer you'll live.

That's the startling result of a study conducted on 800 people in Durham, N.C. by researchers announced.

During the term of the study, 163 members of the group died.

Allowing for factors like accepted unhealthful habits a significant number of people who had made few suspicious moves were still alive.

A psychologist says people who are not suspicious of others have better social relationships, which act as a buffer against everyday irritants and stress.

SATANISM

The NEW Black Plague that's sweeping the world!

By SUSAN JIMISON

Frightened experts the world over are warning of a horrifying new Black Plague — the spread of Devil worship and ghastly human sacrifice!

Social workers and cops in the U.S. and Europe say Satanism is on the increase.

And they worry that the cases that have come to their attention are only the tip of the iceberg.

"Satan is on a rampage — it's happening all over America, but people don't want to believe it," said Dr. Jeannie McCanse, a psychiatrist in Tribal, Ohio., who has worked with scores of victims of Satanic rape abuse.

Mental patient gets govt. help on escape plan

A patient at Canada's toughest maximum security mental hospital wrote the government for a blueprint of the facility which would be helpful in an escape — and got it.

Hospital officials said the plans also provided details of the staff, fire escapes and grounds. The material would be helpful to someone planning an escape, said Oak Ridge hospital spokesman Don Parle.

Pretty 36-year-old knew she didn't have killer disease

MOM HAS HEALTHY BREASTS REMOVED!

. . . so she will never get cancer!

By MARY ELLEN GREEN

The possibility that she might get cancer was just too much for one young woman — so eight weeks ago at the age of 36, Fran Miller had both her healthy breasts removed!

"People tell me I was really brave and courageous," the attractive single mother of two teenage girls says, "but I'm basically a coward.

"I didn't want to wait until a biopsy turned up and was diagnosed as cancerous. I've been waiting for it all my life."

When she was 8, Fran saw her 27-year-old mother die of breast cancer. At first both her grandmother and her grandmother's sister died in their middle. Recently Fran's sister had two cancerous breasts removed. Even undergoing agonizing chemotherapy treatments.

So Fran, a phone company worker from Langley, Canada, feels her drastic decision she is the making for 30 years.

"With Fran Miller's family history, we knew there was a dominant gene being passed on and she had a 50 percent chance of having bilateral breast cancer," explains Dr. Patricia Rebbeck, the doctor who performed the surgery.

Removing all the breast tissue means reducing the risk of breast cancer to "essentially zero," the surgeon who specializes in breast reconstruction said, "but it is not an easy decision to make."

For Fran, however, it was a choice between life and an early death. "I saw them as the things that would probably kill me," she says. Although breast cancer strikes one out of every 10 women, those with a family history of the disease like Fran face a much higher risk.

"I doubt if you would find many surgeons who would agree to that type of surgery. However there may be other underlying circumstances that would make it acceptable such as a family history of cancer," said Dr. Gerald Stoopen, member of the Cancer Department of the American College of Surgeons in Chicago, Ill.

"The woman may have had a mother or sister die of cancer and she just wants to remove the possibility of getting cancer," he said.

The loss of her figure was worth it compared to the odds of not being around for her daughters, the divorced Fran believes.

"I bet a few people, but I don't really identify with my breasts. I think women are brainwashed to think it is their bodies that make them desirable and that makes them a woman."

Today all she feels is relief. "But I'm going to be around for the future."

Fran writes a prediction, but admits she's not too thrilled with it.

"Can you believe this for some surprise? I should have stuck a pair of socks on there and brought a new couple instead."

PRETTY Fran says her scars a great deal now.

She was terrified because of her family's medical history

Meter maid arrested for attacking motorist!

A meter maid was arrested for assault after cops say she armed herself with a broken bottle and threatened the owner of an illegally parked pickup truck!

Authorities in New Orleans said meter maid Camille Reina was writing a citation for an illegally parked pickup when the truck's owner, Norman Perry, sat down on the bumper to hide the license plate. According to witnesses, the meter maid wrote the ticket without the license number and put the citation on the windshield while arguing with Perry.

Then she broke a bottle and walked toward Perry, saying she was going to cut him, police said.

Corpse blows up at funeral

Mourners flee in terror after they showered with debris

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Screaming mourners fled a small country church after the casket containing the deceased was brought to the altar — and the corpse exploded!

Witnesses say the horrifying mishap deserted the last rites for well-known friends and family of the dead man with debris. Fortunately, no one was injured. At least one relative fainted following the explosion.

"One moment we were quietly grieving for our friend — and the next we were running for the door," recalled Jimmy Fuller, a friend of the dead shopkeeper who lived in Paxton, South Dakota.

"It was bad enough to lose my best friend this way — but to help this happen was just horrible. I have only prayed that God takes the body to the proper place for the funeral. Jim said.

The gruesome mishaps occurred when undertakers prepared the body without properly draining the gases that accumulate during embalming. Pastor Joe Hall of the church called the startling explosion an "act of God."

Whatever the cause, the effect was spectacular, especially at the funeral ceremony.

The mourners had just finished bringing the body into the front of the church when the startling explosion occurred. Hospital emergency staff were not neighborly enough — they were stampeded for the door.

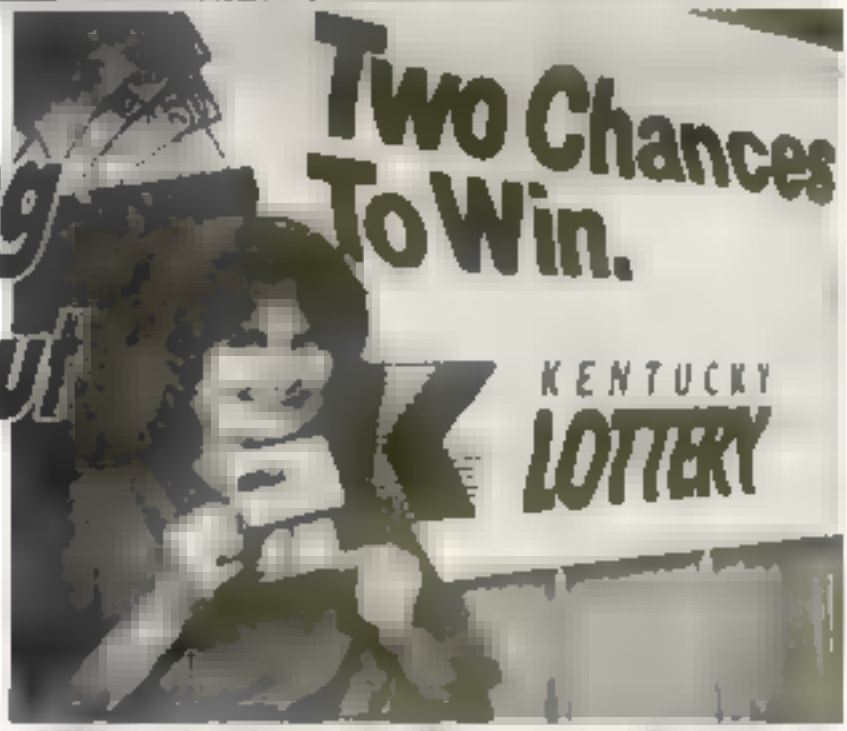
"There was no warning at all," Jim told a newspaper interviewer. "It just exploded all of a sudden — wham!

"People were very upset, though. Poor Alan was such a wonderful person and he would have hated so much that this happened at his funeral.

According to Jim the magnificent pink Mausoleum was total loss.

Housewife is shunned

They're trying to kick me out of church — after I won $25 in the lottery!



LOTTERY winner Brenda Shepherd collected $25 — and a lot of grief. Church leaders chastised her for gambling and are threatening to take steps to excommunicate the lady Deacons tried to kick a 41-year-old housewife out of church because she bought a lottery ticket and won 25 bucks!

By WALT MEAL

"I was stunned," Brenda Shepherd of tiny Keystone, Ky., told The NEWS. "The deacons took it upon themselves to drive out to my house and tell me I had been gambling.

"They said they were going to throw me out of church and take my name off the membership book. Well, I told them where to stick their membership. Playing the lottery is something that's between me and the Lord."

Brenda's encounter with the deacons happened in a newspaper office the week after she won $25 in Kentucky's new scratch-off lottery game.

Simon Porter and John David Bailey, deacons of Gun Creek Baptist Church, stopped by new Mrs. Shepherd's home to point out and confronted her with the charge of gambling.

"I was fixing dinner when they drove up to my house and started banging the horn," said Mrs. Shepherd. "I walked outside and they accused me of gambling. I told them I didn't think it was wrong to buy lottery tickets and that I would have to confirm my sin. I told them the Bible says 'Let he who is without sin cast the first stone.'

"Then I told they better watch where they throw their rocks and get on down the road."

Deacons Porter and Bailey could not be reached for comment. But Mrs. Shepherd says she didn't see or hear from them again until she went to church on Sunday — and was shunned by the congregation.

"Let's just say I had a seat all to myself," said Mrs. Shepherd. "Of course, I'm used to sitting alone. I'm a divorcee and I'm always sitting alone. But I'm not going to stop me from going to church.

"And I'm not going to let it stop me from buying lottery tickets either. Sure, I could stand around

"But I'm not going to do that. I'm going to scratch them off right in the store."

Although the Gun Creek Baptist Church deacons couldn't be reached, a member of the church, Ella Sue Arnett, said the men have not taken proper steps for them

Hopping-mad wife kills hubby because he burned her dinner!

by PETE COOKE

A woman who threw a knife at her husband and killed him, explained to cops that "he quickly dodges, but he went the wrong way."

British authorities said Connie Egan killed her husband, Michael, in the kitchen of their London apartment during a fight that erupted when he burned the couple's dinner.

"Mrs. Egan flew into a rage because her husband burned the potatoes he was preparing her dinner," said one investigator. "The couple started arguing and things just got out of hand."

The 30-year-old wife says she told her she grabbed a kitchen knife and threw it at her husband. She said Egan, 33, urged when he should have ducked and the knife struck him behind the knee.

The blade severed an artery and Egan bled to death on the kitchen floor within four minutes, according to medical experts.

"It was like he had cut blood spurted everywhere," Mrs. Egan testified. "There was nothing I could do. I didn't mean to kill him."

A prominent British pathologist testified that he'd never seen another case in which someone died as the result of a knee injury.

"If there is such a thing as a freak accident, this definitely qualifies," the expert said.

Mrs. Egan pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter and her attorney, Peter Feinberg, asked Judge Neil Denison for a lenient sentence, saying, "For the rest of her life she will have to live with the guilt of killing her husband."

The sympathetic judge responded by releasing Mrs. Egan on probation.

That angered some law enforcement officials, who said the woman got off too easy.

"She may not have meant to kill her husband, but she did," one cop said. "If men started killing their wives for burning dinner, we'd have no place to stack all the bodies."

Gang of thugs beats man up for measly $1!

A dozen thugs attacked a helpless man on the street, beat and kicked him in the face — and robbed him of $1.

Cops said the unidentified 47-year-old man was walking along a Tallahassee, Fla., sidewalk when he heard several gunshots and saw a gang of hoodlums standing in the street.

The attackers approached and ordered the victim to empty his pockets. When he told them he had no money, they knocked him down, kicked him in the face several times and swiped a dollar from his pocket.

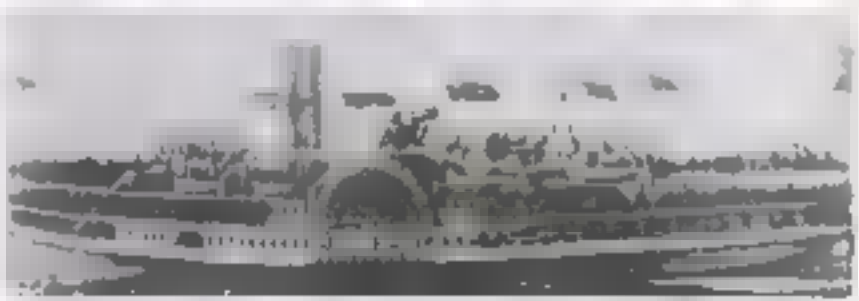
COWARDLY CAPTAIN CAUSED DEATHS OF 1,000!



THE GENERAL SLOCUM as she looked, above, before the fire that killed 1,000 people. Below is the burned out hulk of the ship - a floating death trap that was supplanted by a new passenger

Story: DICK DONOVAN
NEW YORK TIMES

On the windy, sunny morning of June 15, 1904, a blazing excursion boat became a funeral pyre for more than 1,000 women and children — because of the shameful cowardice and criminal bungling of its captain!

On that terrible day, the sidewheeler General Slocum churned its way into New York's East River with 1,400 passengers and crew crowding the decks and lining the rails.

Of the 1,400 people who perished in the inferno that was to wreck the boat, almost all were parishers from the St. Mark's Lutheran Church's Sunday school.

Undoubtedly, the staggering death toll would have been far less had their fate not rested in the hands of Captain William Van Schaick — considered to be the most incompetent mariner in New York Harbor.

As Capt. Van Schaick eased the Slocum up the river, hundreds of children frolicked on the deck. Over the noise of their laughter, a church choir was heard singing A Mighty Fortress Is Our God.

Suddenly, there was a blood-curdling scream: "Fire! The boat's on fire!"

Flames were roaring from a paint locker in the forward part of the Slocum. In wild panic, shrieking mothers were herding terrified children toward the stern. It was a terrible mistake.

Capt. Van Schaick ordered the vessel steered in Hunters Island, a course that allowed the wind to sweep the flames along the Slocum's entire length to the stern.

Countless lives would have been saved if Capt. Van Schaick had beached the Slocum on the Manhattan shore just 300 yards away.

But with most of the passengers trapped near the stern, the captain left the bridge and ran to the bow where he stepped aboard a tug that had approached upwind of the flames, an act of cowardice that later sent him to prison.

The tug took off as many passengers as it could before the spreading flames forced it to back off.

The hundreds of screaming people huddled on the stern found life jackets so rotted they crumbled in their hands. Incredibly, they had been stuffed with iron bars by the manufacturer to meet mandatory weight standards.

Today, 85 years later, only three or four Slocum survivors are still alive. One of those is 86-year-old Catherine Connelly, who was orphaned

Can I get rid of the hussy who shares my body?

Dear Countess Sobek: I'm a churchgoing, respectable, 36-year-old widow with a 15-year-old daughter.

My life would be simple and uncomplicated if it wasn't for Miss Tanya — the 37-year-old hussy who shares my body.

Miss Tanya makes me do things that I blush to think about. She tells me to pick up men in the bars and take them home to my bed. She makes me drink gin, and then when I throw up she makes fun of me.

Eventually my respected status over in my house in talk to me about my daughter's Sunday school. Miss Tanya took over my body and forced me to strip in front of this lady and pantyhose male.

The poor respected fool, and he hasn't come over to my house since. I'm so ashamed. But it's not me who does these things — it's that slut Miss Tanya.

I was born Feb. 8, 1940, at 3:00 a.m. and Miss Tanya was born, as she tells me, on June 11, 1972, though I think she's older than that. She's certainly very experienced when it comes to men and their ways.

What am I to do, Countess? Do you see any getting rid of Miss Tanya anytime soon, or is she destined to live inside me for the rest of my life?

By the way, she knows I'm writing to you and she says it won't do any good, that she likes living inside me and will stay here forever. — Two-of-Us in Tucson

Dear Two-of-Us: You poor woman. I have studied your chart, and by the way thank you for sending the hour of your birth to me, and find that you will be free of Miss Tanya. But it will take time, several years at least.

You will soon be relieved of her odious presence by the arrival of a psychiatrist. Act on this advice immediately. I beg of you.

Dear Countess Sobek: I'm due to be married soon and I'm quite broke. I've been married twice before, my first marriage ended rather badly when I found my husband there in our bedroom after I caught him with our next-door neighbor.

He remarried, but divorced me and I spent some time in jail.

After that bad experience I've had more than a little wary of marriage. I certainly don't want to spend any more choosing husbands — they're just not worth it.

I was born Aug. 13, 1950, at good Christian parents. Here the poor man my next marriage going, Countess? Will we be happy? I still have a gun, but not the one I shot my husband with. Should I get rid of it? — Ring-a-ling in Reading

Dear Ring-a-ling: Sell your gun and buy your lucky bride a wedding ring. I see nothing but married happiness ahead for you — and a letter to let by parole for bygones.

* * *

Dear Countess Sobek: I'm 19 years old and live by myself and I've got no family and few friends. I've been thinking for some time now that I should buy a dog to be a companion. It would be nice to have another living thing around the house!

I was born Mar. 18, 1913, and my question is: Is it

What kind of dog will I be happiest with? By the way, I have a large yard.

I know this is a trivial kind of question, when so many people who write to you have really serious problems, but this dog will mean a lot to me.

So please, Countess, what do the stars tell you about the dog I should buy? — Ronald Ring in Mississippi

Dear Ronald Dog: Your question is not trivial. I know how much a companion means to you in your loneliness.

I have studied your chart, and also took into consideration the fact that you live in a house with a yard, and have decided the dog for you is a golden retriever. Enjoy him.

Dear Countess Sobek: I am a Taurus, born 5/6/42, and the man I'm interested in was born a Virgo, 8/31/41. He is so much fun to be with that our age difference doesn't seem to matter. We enjoy each other's company and are agreed in many things.

The night we met we went to see a psychic and are amazed at how many of her predictions have come true.

At the time he had just broken off with a girl who had had his baby. They gave it up for adoption, and that has been very hard on him.

I was seeing someone else at that time also, and the psychic advised me to dump him, predicting that I would be a lot happier like she was right.

I would like to know if you can tell me if there is a chance that we have a future together? Our relationship has been entirely friendship so far. — N.B. in Iowa

Dear N.B.: A stunning shower of shots reverberating with Venus entry into your house of romance and relationships does forecast happiness in your future.

The gentleman in question is the perfect partner for you.

Ozzie & Harriet alive and well all across America!

Reports that [redacted] family life is dead are wrong, says expert

By SUSAN JIMISON

Contrary to what you may be hearing from the "experts," the American family is alive and thriving!

That's the reassuring conclusion of an authority on American life-styles, says Daniel Blankenhorn of the Institute for American Values.

"People want to tell you the old-fashioned family — kids, a homemaker father and breadwinner father — doesn't exist in any great numbers anymore, but it's not true," said Blankenhorn, who does research on social issues from his New York City office.

"The most common type of family with young children is a family in which the wife is at home caring for the kids. That's 35% percent of American families. And another 15 percent of families have a mom who works, but only part-time. That's a pretty traditional family, too."

Blankenhorn says that anyone who studies the American family must figures gathered by the Census Bureau and the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Yet many experts have reported that less than 10 percent of families fit the traditional "Ozzie and Harriet" mold.

They do this by "ranking" their statistics, Blankenhorn charges. They compare the traditional family with one-parent and older men and women whose children have left home.

And they count a mother as a "working mom" even if she has only a part-time job for a few hours a week.

"The effect of this is to belittle a certain type of family," Blankenhorn said.

"It makes them seem like a negligible quantity of our society and that is absolutely not true."

Killer bees attack village!

A swarm of 80,000 angry bees attacked a tiny hamlet killing ducks, chickens and a dog — while terrified residents huddled helplessly in their homes.

The bees invaded the village near Mulhouse in southwestern France, after fleeing their nearby hives. Their owner finally ended the attack by turning a huge sprinkler system on the insects, driving them back to their hives.

Sex-addict doc is back on the job!

By PETE COOKE

A doctor suspended for sexually stimulating female patients during physical exams is back in practice, even though he has been diagnosed as being addicted to sex.

Dr Stanley Dreller was suspended by Florida officials from his practice in a gynecological clinic in 1986 following complaints by several patients, including two teenage girls.

But after Dreller underwent therapy and found another doctor willing to supervise him, the Florida Board of Medicine agreed to let Dreller practice again.

Dreller, who was allowed to return to general practice but not his specialty of gynecology and obstetrics, will work in the offices of a Zephyrhills internist. He will have to have a nurse present whenever he examines female patients.

The board voted 7-6 to let Dreller practice again during a hearing in which a letter from Dreller's psychiatrist was presented.

The psychiatrist, Dr Mary Jo Thomas, said she couldn't guarantee Dreller wouldn't victimize patients again, but added that was to "be in full control of his impulses."

The psychiatrist said Dreller suffers from a personality disorder and "sexual sadism."

Several lawmakers dismissed Dreller as a "sex addict," whose symptoms is similar to drug or alcohol addiction.

Boy stabs dad over bad grades

A 15-year-old boy stabbed his father nine times because he was afraid of the punishment he would get when the old man saw his bad report card.

Neither the boy nor his father were identified in reports. But court officials in Sydney, Australia, said that the teen pleaded guilty to "maliciously wounding" his dad with a scuba knife and was given three years' probation.

The father underwent surgery for his wounds, authorities said.

Wrecking crew demolishes building — with stubborn tenant inside!

THE BUILDING comes crashing to the ground — and Hugo Rumar appears at the top of the pile

He huffed and he puffed, so they blew his house down . . .

By TERRY STACK

A demolition crew leveled a 12-story apartment building with a stubborn tenant inside!

That's one tough bird. Carlos Duran, owner of the building, told newsmen at the 2nd Judicial Circuit Court that he had every chance to get out of the building before it was destroyed. But he refused, claiming the apartment he was residing in belonged to him.

Duran tried to get every tenant out of the building by offering them money and assistance to relocate in other apartments. But Hugo Rumar refused to move. Duran then tried to have the demolition stopped.

I gave Rumar several months to get out. But he stayed on in spite of my efforts to get him out. And at 12:10 p.m. we demolished the building as planned.

Approximately 75 of Duran's 100 former tenants were relocated for the demolition. Duran has been sued by eight other tenants who claim that they were damaged by the demolition.

Rumar's death toll was one. No charges will be filed.

As far as we're concerned, Mr. Rumar was responsible for his own death," he said. "If something like this happened in the United States of Europe somebody would probably be charged with murder.

Things are different in Illinois. We believe that people must take responsibility for their decisions and behavior. In our opinion, Mr. Rumar died."

Rumar's body was discovered four days after it was found. He had no family and was buried

Here's why the sexes battle!

A new study pinpoints the prime sources of conflict between men and women and the results are guaranteed to surprise you.

According to University of Michigan psychologist David Burn, who conducted the research, here's what bothers a human about a mate:

- Sexual aggressiveness.
- Condescending. Ignoring her opinions because she is a woman or treating her as inferior or stupid.
- Thoughtlessness. Being late or breaking a date without calling.
- Flirting. Paying attention to other women.
- Hitting. No woman is safe if she's tough.
- Drinking or smoking too much.
- Violence.

There's what bothers a woman about a man:

- Rudeness. Which is defined as a general "bitchiness" or obnoxious being out of step.
- Sexual rejection.
- Self-absorption. A behavior that is characterized by a person having very little interest or awareness of others.

Other major problem spots mentioned by both sexes are unfaithfulness and physical or verbal abuse, Dr. Burn said.

The experts based his findings on four different studies with nearly 600 women and men. In published reports, other researchers said that understanding the causes of trouble between lovers and even "mood" help soften the impact of negative behavior.

Couple forced acid down their 3-month-old boy's throat — so they could sue baby food company, say police

A Chicago couple is accused of killing their baby son by forcing sulfuric acid down his tiny throat — so they could sue a baby formula company.

Brave baby Quinton Irby, who was 3 months old at the time of the attack, spent 2½ torturous years in a hospital battling for his life until he died in 1984. "He was in critical condition every day while in the hospital," said Assistant State Attorney Matthew Chancey.

"He was unable to swallow, so breathe by himself or speak. He had acid burns in his mouth and in his throat. He had one lung removed after the incident."

Concerned parents Sheba Scott, 26, and Ricky Irby, 29, rushed Quinton to a hospital on late May of 1984, claiming he was poisoned by contaminated baby formula.

"We never believed their story from the start," Chancey told The NEWS. "And their version happens every time after we investigated.

"We believe the boy's parents deliberately forced acid down his throat so they could sue a products liability lawsuit against Abbott Laboratories," said Chancey.

The couple had claimed in 1984 that their baby was drinking baby formula manufactured by Abbott which was tainted with the acid.

Irby filed suit against Ross Laboratories, a division of Abbott Laboratories, about a year after his son's death and voluntarily dismissed the suit 10 months later.

Police didn't charge the couple earlier because vital evidence in the case was lost by the Illinois Department of Public Health in 1985.

The evidence included an opened can of formula which the parents claimed was contaminated, a bottle and nipple and an unopened can of formula.

The case had been in limbo since 1985 because of the lost evidence until a Supreme Court ruled last November that accidentally lost evidence does not preclude prosecution.

Cops reopened their investigation and Chancey was able to get a grand jury to indict the couple on first-degree murder charges.

"All I could think of for five years was that those parents got by with murder and there was nothing we could do about it because of the lost evidence," said Chancey. "And for 2½ of those five years, that little boy suffered excruciating pain."

Here are other good, bad and ugly bits of weather trivia:

The heaviest snowfall in any 24-hour period was 76 inches in Silver Lake, Colo., in 1921. And the temperature reached a record 134 degrees in Death Valley, Calif., on July 10, 1913. The lowest was minus 76 degrees at Tanana, Alaska, in January 1886.

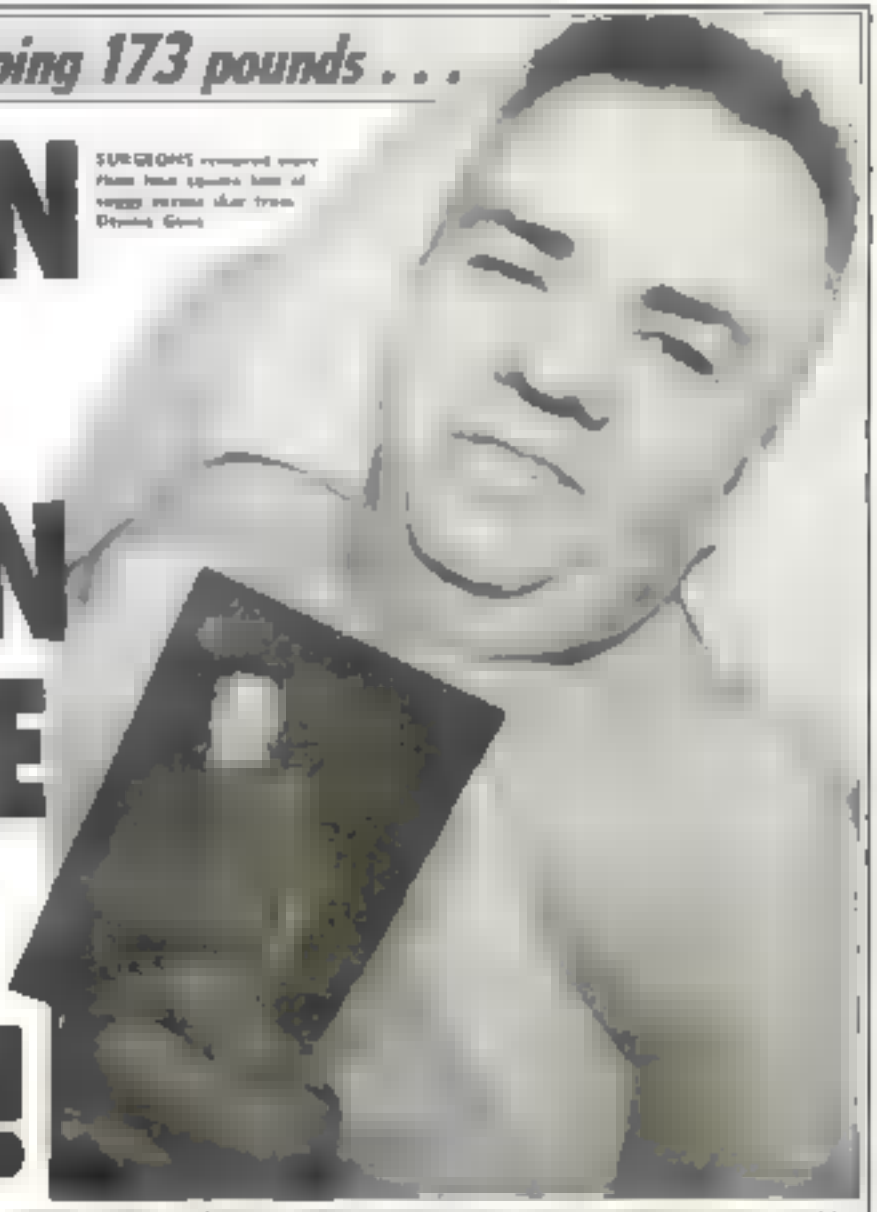
FAT MAN GIVES HIS SKIN TO SAVE BURN VICTIM!



SURGEONS removed more than two square feet of saggy excess skin from Dennis Gens

By DICK DONOVAN

When tubby Dennis Gens lost 173 pounds he kept his baggy old clothes — but he donated four square feet of saggy excess skin to a burn center.

And just 24 hours after surgeons removed the excess skin, some of it was used to save the life of a horribly burned 2-month-old baby.

"It really made the [illegible] great when I heard that. The skin [illegible]

"That's what I hoped would happen when I donated the [illegible]

So I decided right when I [illegible] I'd donate the excess skin to a burn center so it could be used to save someone's life.

In the operating room, surgeons removed four square feet of excess skin, weighing nearly forty pounds. It was sent to the Regional Burn Center at Johns Hopkins Medical Center to treat a severe burn patient.

And the very next day, part of the excess skin was used to save the life of 2-month-old Dwight Myers, who was born [illegible] on his head, face, chest and arms. [illegible] Apparently, doctors blame that [illegible] the baby.

"I've worked in emergency rooms for 25 years and I've seen a lot of burn victims," Dennis said.

"It really makes me feel great to know that I was able to help one of them."

Dennis said he's keeping the clothes he wore when he was a tubby 400-pounder.

He said he certainly doesn't intend to grow back into them, but he can't bring them away either.

"They're a good reminder to me," he explained.

Is The Pill the answer to ■ mother's prayer?

Dear Dotti: What can I do with my daughter? She's 16 and already has had two children out of wedlock.

Her big problem is that she's a sentimental girl, and when she goes out with a guy she always ends up giving him what he wants.

I've spoken to her about this and she told me that she doesn't see anything wrong with having sex with a guy she likes.

She doesn't intend to stop — for me to express that. Even our clergyman — and my prayers — couldn't convince her that sex should be saved for marriage.

I spoke to our family doctor, a dear man, and he said that I should put Kathy on The Pill.

But I've understood abuse this.

Doesn't The Pill cause heart problems and many other complications for women?

Please let me know right away if I should get my daughter on The Pill, or if there is some other way to stop her sleeping around?

She's a very nice girl and I want to do what's best for her — Worried in Wisc

Dear Worried: By all means put your daughter on The Pill. If she won't stop sleeping around at least she'll stop having babies and adding to the over-population problem. Also get her examined by your doctor regularly — there are some nasty sexually transmitted diseases going around.

I'm madly in love with a car!

Dear Dotti: I have a very unusual problem — I'm in love with an automobile. To be exact about it, my lover's a red Porsche and doesn't belong to me, she is owned by my next door neighbor.

I have overriding about the car. I love her color and her curves and the way the only shines on her hood.

Every time I get a chance, I walk over to my neighbor's driveway just so I can run my hands along this Porsche's sleek body.

Unfortunately, I work as a sales clerk and I'll never have enough money to own a car as beautiful as this one.

Is there anything I can do to get over my infatuation or am I destined to be unhappy for the rest of my life? — Heartsick-Lonely in New York

Dear Heartsick-Lonely: You are a sick

I'm bored with housework

Dear Dotti: I read your column every week and think you give good advice. Now I need your help. I'm a married woman with two children, but I'm not in love with my husband. I'm married to a fireman. I married him when my husband started working the night shift, and I began spending more and more time with my girlfriends so that I wouldn't have to put up with my in-laws all the time.

Nothing has happened, except that we go to movies and just have a good time being together.

I'm getting more and more dissatisfied with my home life and would rather be out with my girlfriends than at home doing housework for my family.

Do you think I have a problem? — Bored Feelings in Buckley

Dear Bored Feelings: You've got a problem — you and the millions of other women who're bored with their lives, husbands and their housework.

It won't go away on its own. You've got to do something about it. Why don't you get a job? Or go back to school? Or take up a hobby? Or do volunteer work?

Do something to get out of the house and then enjoy the movie with your friend.

Will this boy's daddy like me?

Dear Dotti: I'm a 36-year-old man who happens to be gay and I'm madly in love with a 15-year-old boy who likes girls, not me.

I tried to visit this boy, but a horrid little man, his father I believe, stuck a gun in my face and said he'd blow my head off if I ever came by again.

I think he meant it.

What do you think? Should I try to visit this boy again and try to reason with his father? I'm willing to take a chance if you think it will be safe. — Lonely in Denver

Dear Lonely: Oh, please, please try to visit this kid again. I really do think you'll get what you deserve if you'll give it your perverted little head blown off.

Confidential

Dear Vampire Lady: No, I've never tried it and I doubt I ever will. Besides, I don't have a tube.

Dear Texas Cowboy: You'll never learn, so don't worry it, hayley.

Dear Bobby's Girl: It's been tried before many times. It didn't work then, it won't work now.

Dear Blondie: Wow!

Dear Frantic in Fresno: The prostate gave you some good advice. Just make the best of what you have, or rather, haven't.

10,000 NEWS readers agree with Castro — one thing:

AIDS victims should be jailed until they die!

A whopping 88 percent of NEWS readers agree that Fidel Castro is right to throw AIDS victims in jail and keep them there until they die.

That's the figure we got after tabulating 10,876 reader responses to a questionnaire that was included in a story on the Cuban kingpin's solution to the AIDS problem that appeared in our July 4 edition.

Sixteen readers look that 1 percent feel that Castro isn't going far enough. They believe AIDS victims should be given lethal injections or shot in keep the disease from spreading.

A little booze is OK for oldsters

Small amounts of booze may help older people, but alcohol abuse could be dangerous to oldsters with heart troubles.

The effects of alcohol abuse on the elderly range from physical and mental impairment to a worsening of lower chronic illnesses, says a Surgeon General's report.

The apparent conflicting efforts of helper and good effects of alcohol are most notable in cases of coronary artery disease, which affects about 20 million Americans over 65.

Studies have confirmed that hypertension, a major contributor to cardiovascular disease and stroke, increases in the elderly as alcohol use increases.

Mom sends kid to school with crack in her backpack

A mom who slipped up and sent her daughter off to school with a cocaine rock the size of a golf ball in her backpack has been sentenced to three years in prison.

Maria Torres was arrested after her 6-year-old daughter found the cocaine in her backpack and smuggled it into some of her cornrowed classmates during their lunch hour.

Authorities in Van Nuys, Calif., said the girl and eight of her friends tested the cocaine but did not become ill.

During her trial, Mrs. Torres denied the cocaine was hers. She testified instead that a friend she'd met in her apartment building must have put the cocaine in her daughter's backpack.

But jurors found the 28-year-old mother guilty on charges of child endangerment and possession of cocaine for sale.

"She's quite upset," said Richard Wolfen, the woman's attorney, after the verdict was announced.

Maria Torres, above, stood in her apartment's hallway, guilty of child endangerment and drug charges.

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

Blocks calorie absorption

SWANSEA – Medical researchers at the University of Swansea, in England, have announced breakthrough a new weight-loss formula. The new discovery enables an overweight individual to lose pounds and fully tone without dieting or exercise.

Scientists made the discovery while testing the formula on a group of overweight people. The chemical was introduced unknowingly into the dieters' food unbeknownst to the dieters. They were surprised to find that every person who took the formula lost weight. The published report of the study stated "A highly significant decrease in body weight was seen" in patients who received the formula.

The formula was then tested in Sweden at Uppsala Hospital. University of Uppsala. All patients had a substantial amount of weight even though they did not change their eating habits. The report, published in the British Journal of Nutrition stated "Both weight and significantly reduced even though the patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits." One patient in the study lost more than 50 pounds.

According to the information sources, the active ingredient comes from a UNIT natural botanical source and contains no drugs or stimulants. When taken before mealtime it binds with the food you eat and "locks up" calories, preventing their absorption.

A substantial portion of the calories consumed do not pass through the digestive system undigested. The body has to go energy to digest the fat calories so it starts to burn stored fat. The result is rapid body weight loss. Extensive clinical tests have verified the safety of the formula for long-term use.

The formula is marketed in tablet form as the "Diet-Genie" under the trade name Lo-Cal-Rite 3000. A firm located in Tampa, Florida, has exclusive North American distribution rights. A review of the customer files of the company revealed the names of hundreds of people who have lost up to 30 pounds the first week and as much as 80 pounds in more pounds could with Lo-Cal-Rite 3000. Save water — wash the car!

An amazing new Hawaiian car washing liquid will save time and water!

Dr. Pete Water Mixer Car Wash Solution is marketed by St. James Industries of Santa Barbara, Calif., and should appeal to environmentalists and car owners who live in apartments.

You dilute one capful of the soapy solution in two quarts of water to wash a small compact, two capfuls in a gallon for larger cars.

Apply the solution directly to a small section of the car with a wash mitt or sponge, then dry it with a chamois or soft cloth.

"The average running hose wastes up to 10 gallons of water per minute, so that means the average car washing only water approximately 100 gallons of precious water" said company president Allen St. James.

Fearing the wrath of angry animal lovers . . .

Fiend who tortured this kitten begs: Don't let me out of jail!

"Please don't let me out of jail — I'm afraid I'll get beaten up by animal lovers."

That's the plea of a whining creep in court after he was accused of torturing a kitten by dragging it behind his speeding car.

The kitten, named Slugger, has all four of his paws bandaged following his run-in with the heartless animal abuser, who dragged him at 70 m.p.h. behind his car — just for laughs.

Fortunately for Slugger, police in Brisbane, Australia, spotted something bouncing along at the end of a rope and

Cat dragged behind car at 70 m.p.h. — for laughs stopped the motorist to find out what was going on.

They charged the driver for a male and a half before they would say the rat.

Then the horrified officers realized that the bundle at the end of the rope was a mangled kitten.

"All his claws have been ripped out because he tried to cling to the road," said veterinarian Cathy Martino, who cared for the injured animal. "He's also suffering from skin loss and gravel burns but he should make a good recovery.

"He's a lovely, friendly thing, although after what he's been through I expected him to be scared of people," said the veterinarian.

The creep who tortured Slugger nearly got his eyes scratched out by angry animal lovers when he was brought into court for his hearing.

He has been charged with unlawfully wounding an animal.

The judge adjourned his case and released him on bail, but agreed to withhold his name.

BLUSHER: the kitten is not the most alive his handle added. All four of his paws are bandaged after his claws were ripped out on the road.

Pretty girl killed herself — because she thought her legs were too fat!

Tragic Anilia Bhandia plunged to her death in a river — because she thought she was growing ugly!

The raven-haired 21-year-old bank clerk's body was found partially hidden by weeds along the bank of England's famed River Thames where she and her lover used to stroll.

By DICK DONOVAN

Authorities said Anilia had left a farewell note to her longtime fiance Rajesh Gohil which read, "Forget me. I'll never be able to make you happy."

"Anilia was very good-looking, but she suddenly began thinking she was becoming ugly," her anguished 25-year-old sister Kania said. "She said her legs were getting fat and that she was starting to grow facial hair.

"She felt that everyone around her was beautiful and that they were always looking at her because she was ugly. We tried to help her, but she was really depressed."

Anilia, who lived in London, was so deeply convinced she was growing fat and ugly that she had severed her relationship with Rajesh and refused to see him. After breaking off the seven-year romance, she told her sister, "I don't want to marry him because I believe he deserves someone better than me."

But Anilia's suicide has completely shattered and confused 21-year-old Rajesh.

"My heart is broken," he said.

Still her legs drive pretty Anilia Bhandia to suicide?

RIVER of no return. Heartbroken Rajesh Gohil stares at the dark waters that claimed the life of his sweetie.

Stripper's gig was cruel to pig

Outraged humane officials seized a pig from a Canadian nightclub, claiming it was being mistreated — because a stripper used the animal as part of her act.

The act called for a member of the audience to wrestle the pig and over-naked stripper Nadia the Beastmaster at a club in Loomin, Ontario.

"It was billed as a greased-pig act, but there was more oil on the stripper than on the pig," said Humane Society inspector Bob Turdell.

"The pig wasn't suffering any physical harm. It was more a stress factor."

But Nadia the Beastmaster — real name Carrie Rowe — says the pig is her pet and even sleeps in her hotel room when she travels.

"It gets treated a lot better than pigs on farms," she said.

RETIRES Elmer Elliott, 84, wanted to have one last fling before he died

Cheers!

Ailing oldster treats himself to one last fling

Lively oldster Elmer Elliott cleaned out his bank account and borrowed $1,000 from his son for one last fling before he dies.

"Anyone with an ounce of sense might sit back in their rocking chair and wait for the grim reaper, but that's not for me," said Elliott, 84.

By JACK ALEXANDER

"People who sit around feeling sorry for themselves make me sick."

The retired businessman, who lives in a home for the elderly in Rockport, Maine, has a bad heart, cancer, weak lungs and is losing weight.

"I wanted to have one last memorable fling before I died," he said. "I packed my bags and went to Boston for a few daiquiris, a bit of Scotch, some fine food and lots of jazz."

Elliott dined at the Ritz Carlton, hobnobbed at The Old Cheese Boutique, savored scallops at Anthony's Pier Four and wandered the Boston Common one last time.

"I went to the places I had enjoyed through the years," he told the NEWS. "It was a fabulous experience. I met so many interesting people. I shall never forget those four days in Boston."

Elliott was given the red carpet treatment at the Four Seasons Hotel. "They made me feel like somebody," he said.

The twice-divorced, twice-widowed retired businessman is back alone in his Rockport apartment. "I can face whatever happens now. I've had my good time.

"An appreciation for life is about the only reason I'm still here," he said. "People, music, literature, theater are what it's been about.

"I believe in making the most of each day, getting the most out of life because life is a wonderful experience."

Elliott has an appointment with his doctor — his first since colon cancer surgery last February. "I think I know what he's going to say. I have been losing weight and that's a bad sign," he said. "But I can deal with bad news . . . and make the best of it."

Computer goof lets callers phone anywhere — for free!

A computer goof let people make free international calls from a string of pay phones in Huntington, N.Y. — and scores of them took advantage!

For an entire month people using rigged pay phones in such faraway places as China, England, Costa Rica, India, Pakistan, Italy, Israel, Hong Kong, South America and Africa talked without spending a nickel.

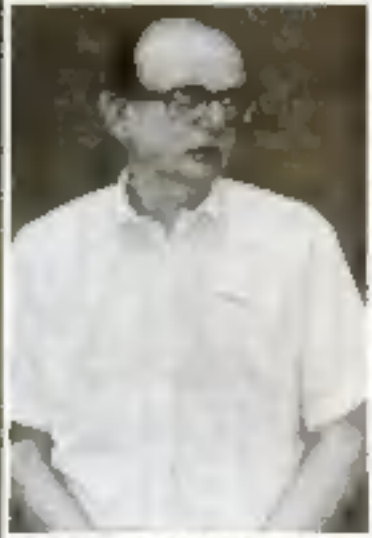
'THE NEWS' NABS A KILLER!



FUGITIVE John List lived on the lam for 18 years after slaughtering his wife, mother and three kids, say cops.

By PETE COOKE

When Wanda Flannery saw the Weekly World News story about fugitive John List she knew immediately that the accountant accused of killing his wife, mother and three kids in 1971 was the man who lived next door.

"He was going by the name Bob Clark," Mrs. Flannery said after List's recent arrest. "He'd married and moved in with my neighbor, Delores, but I knew Bob Clark was really John List the minute I saw his picture in the Weekly World News."

List's life on the lam began in November 1971, when he left a mountain of debts and his murdered family behind in Westfield, N.J. List had been gone for a month before cops entered his sprawling three-story house and discovered the bodies of his wife, children and mother.

All the victims had been shot to death and HOUSEWIFE Wanda Flannery saw killer's photo in the Feb. 17, 1987 Weekly World News — and recognized him as her neighbor.

"The sketch was a dead ringer for Bob Clark," Mrs. Flannery said. "I took the paper next door and showed it to Delores. She turned pale and kept looking at it, saying, 'Oh my! Oh my!' Finally, Delores shook her head and said, 'That's not my husband.' I dared her to show it to Bob and ask him, but I don't think she ever did. She's not a strong person and I don't think she could have faced the truth so she just let it be."

Mrs. Flannery said she let the matter drop and the Clarks later moved to Richmond, Va.

But when Mrs. Flannery saw Lon Insinger on a recent episode of TV's America's Most Wanted, she knew that she had to act. "My daughter reminded him too," she said. "We turned him in to the FBI while the program was still on."

John List is one of a number of people suspected of being existing hijacker D.B. Cooper, said FBI spokesman John Fiver. Cooper parachuted from a Boeing 727 with $200,000 cash near Mount St. Helens, Wash., in 1971.

New spray cools off hot cars

By MOLLIE SHAW

A physicist has developed an exciting new spray that instantly cools the interior of a hot car by 40 mind-blowing degrees!

The product, called Instant Car Kooler, is now in production and is expected to be available later this month.

Tan was driven to create the product because he was tired of getting into his car after it had been parked with the windows up under a scorching sun. "So I went to work to find a way to cool things off quicker. And now I've found it."

Tan says the secret to his Instant Car Kooler is simple science.

The spray contains both alcohol and water, which instantly slows and cools fast-moving hot-air molecules, dropping the temperature in a car by 40 degrees.

Tan says 20-ounce cans of his Car Kooler will sell nationwide for about $3.50. For more information on the product write: Instant Car Kooler, General Innovations Inc., P.O. Box 70595, Alameda
